Laboratory Procedures

For long term storage, we suggest that dimethyl biphenyl-4,4'-dicarboxylate be stored as supplied at -20°C. It should be stable for at least two years.

Dimethyl biphenyl-4,4'-dicarboxylate is supplied as a crystalline solid. A stock solution may be made by dissolving the dimethyl biphenyl-4,4'-dicarboxylate in the solvent of choice. Dimethyl biphenyl-4,4'-dicarboxylate is soluble in organic solvents such as DMSO and dimethyl formamide, which should be purged with an inert gas. The solubility of dimethyl biphenyl-4,4'-dicarboxylate in these solvents is approximately 0.25 and 1 mg/ml, respectively.

Dimethyl biphenyl-4,4'-dicarboxylate is sparingly soluble in aqueous solutions. To enhance aqueous solubility, dilute the organic solvent solution into aqueous buffers or isotonic saline. If performing biological experiments, ensure the residual amount of organic solvent is insignificant, since organic solvents may have physiological effects at low concentrations. We do not recommend storing the aqueous solution for more than one day.

Description

Dimethyl biphenyl-4,4'-dicarboxylate is a planar biphenyldicarboxylic acid ester used as a hepatoprotectant in the treatment of chronic hepatitis.¹ At 250 µg/ml, it has been shown to stimulate JAK/STAT signaling and to induce the expression of interferon-α stimulated genes in a HepG2 cell line.¹
